Biodiversity Services

Biodiversity matters at idverde and we regularly carry out work in areas that are of value to wildlife. This will vary from informal green infrastructure in urban environments to formally 'designated sites' of nature conservation interest.

Our expertise in green space management means that we can deliver advice on the ground, achieving practical benefits for the environment and wildlife.

We can produce detailed management and maintenance plans for your site that take full account of biodiversity and deliver biodiversity gains, e.g. designing planting schemes that are of value to pollinating insects. We can provide targeted and clear management advice for specific species, as well as more general 'site-wide' guidance.

We can also develop a Biodiversity Action Plan, which are a mechanism for focusing resources and utilising local partnerships to conserve and enhance local biodiversity and, in combination with others, national biodiversity. It can also yield many opportunities for community involvement, through volunteering and educational opportunities.

Sustainability Focused

At idverde UK, we recognise the importance of the environment and the role our organisation plays in helping to protect the environment for future generations. Most of the people who choose to work for idverde UK have a natural interest in wildlife and green spaces, leading to a cultural bias towards making our communities stronger while helping improve our outdoor spaces and support wildlife conservation. With this key interest already within our people, we can see everyday examples of our colleagues working in ways to make our services and practices more sustainable.

We are ISO 9001, ISO 14001, and OHSAS ISO 45001 accredited, which supports and guides our practices and requires idverde to carry out annual Environmental Impacts and Aspects Assessments which touches on many aspects of the sustainability agenda. In a way of pushing on from our existing certified systems, we are now also fully committed to achieving B-Corps certification, which is a wholly 'sustainability-focused' process aimed at making all aspects of our business better with regards to Sustainability. Our current target for achieving this is early 2022 and will be delivered alongside the implementation of our ambitious Sustainability Strategy.

We have a long-standing relationship with the RSPB and employ dedicated RSPB colleagues to help maintain, enhance and restore sites for Nature Conservation (SINC) and other green spaces for wildlife.

idverde pledges £40,000 per year to support community-led projects to improve their local green space or the public realm, enhance the local environment, and boost the wellbeing of local people.

Through the idverde Greenspace Development team, we deliver over 100,000 hours per year of community volunteering and added value activities.
